

THE TRAIL OF
PAINTED PONIES

Angels on High

Artist: Laurie Cook

"When I picture angels celebrating the Savior's birth, in my mind I see skies filled with effervescent joy as heavenly figures dance among billowy soft clouds. The air rings with mysteriously beautiful music, while down on earth, the animals sense that something wonderful has occurred. And this Pony stops, turns her head into a gentle breeze, and pricks her delicate ears to better hear the joyful song of celebration."

Winter Ballet

Artist: Bryn Wilkins Lawson

The inspiration for this original design comes from a Holiday ballet the artist attended with her daughter. Dashing through the snow in a magical cape that is made to fit similar to a real horse blanket, but with ruffling added at the bottom to convey the subtle idea of a ballet tutu, "Winter Ballet" has an icy feel to it, thanks to decorative snowflake details worked into the body and base, and shimmering in the mane and tail. She, of course, is wearing a crown shaped to represent half a snowflake.
