

Navajo Sand Painter

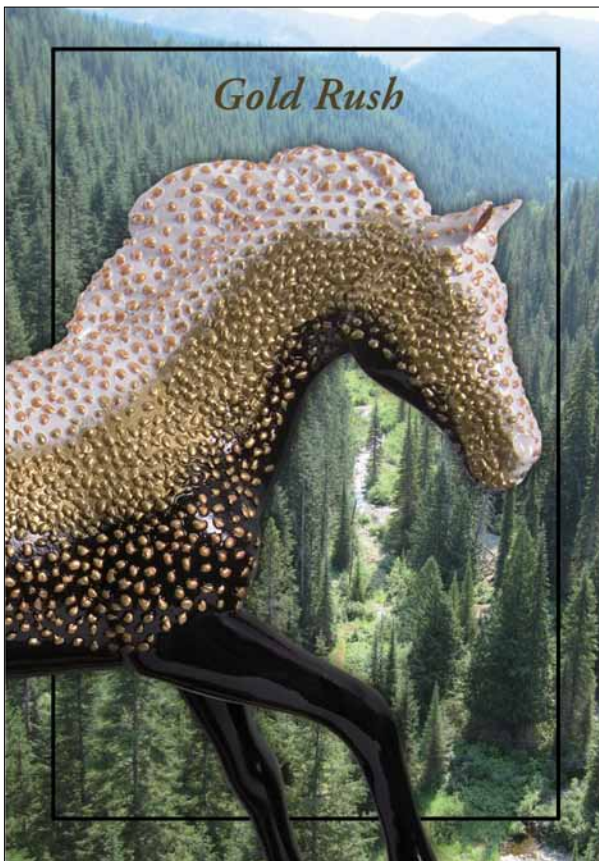

Artist: Cheryl A. Harris

According to the Navajo religion, the Universe is perfectly balanced and everything in it walks in beauty. There are times, however, when this balance is upset and harmony must be restored. "Navajo Sand Painter" depicts these ceremonies involving prayers, songs and sand paintings featuring sacred Navajo symbols carefully drawn with colorful sands by powerful Medicine Men. Mother Earth rejoices.

Gold Rush

Artist: Stefanie Schaezchen

This Painted Pony is as good as gold! Inspired by the California Gold Rush in the mid-1800s, "Gold Rush" magically captures the look and feel of mountain currents, carrying gold nuggets downstream, where the dreams of gold-seeking treasure hunters came true. Stake your claim on the vast riches of the American West, just like those prickly prospectors who panned for that glittering gold did, over a century ago.

THE TRAIL OF
PAINTED PONIES

Horseplay

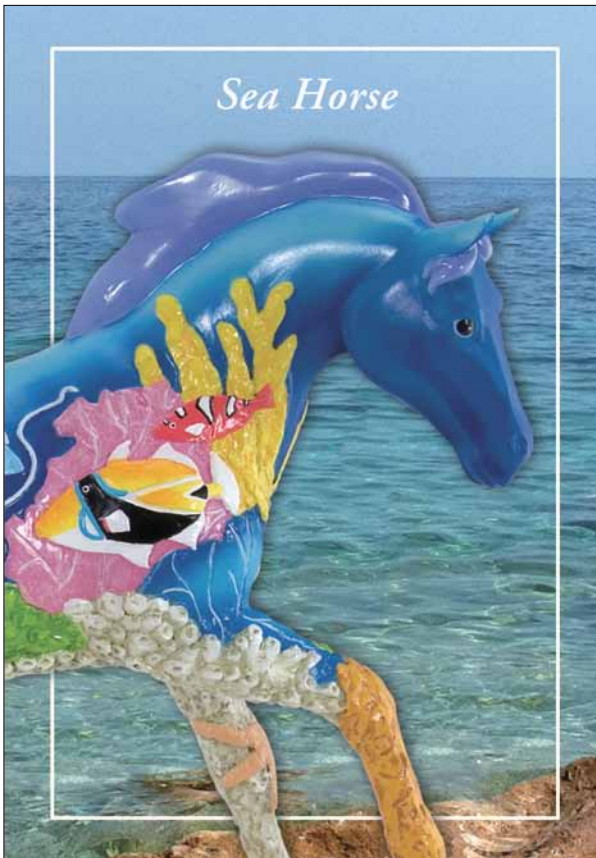

Artist: Vickie Knepper-Adrian

This playful Painted Pony is all about the games people play. From board games to baseball, these are the games of our lives! We begin with a simple jump rope and tick-tack-toe and soon we are playing team sports that teach us about good sportsmanship. Finally, there are the card games and board games that invite us to exercise our minds, as well. "Horseplay" invites everyone to discover the joy of playing games with family & friends.

Sea Horse

Artist: Sue Ann Clark

This is a Painted Pony that Jacques Cousteau would have loved! Ocean lovers no longer need to take a scuba diving vacation to tropical islands to experience the beauty of an underwater paradise. "Sea Horse" invites you to discover the deep blue sea, above a colorful coral reef in the company of exotic marine life: a Dolphin, Angel Fish, Sea Turtle, and yes, an adorable little Seahorse, so named because it looks like a little horse!
