

Santa's Workshop

Artist: Laurie Cook

From the artist: During my growing up years, I envisioned Santa's workshop as a brightly-lit place, warmed by a roaring fireplace, smelling of peppermint and filled to overflowing with toys, toys, toys. All of the hammers and paint-cans were elf-sized, the sound of miniature saws kept beat to the happy bustling that went on around the clock, and in the middle of the room, larger than any other toy, was a proud prancing rocking horse.

Candy Coated Treat

Artist: Steve Riecks

Far away in a cottage near the North Pole, a grandfather elf puts the finishing touches on a candy coated treat that a child will dream of on the night before Christmas.

Winter Beauty

Artist: Lorna Matsuda

It was a stormy winter night when this special little pony was born. As he looked with wonder at the snowflakes blowing in the open doorway and landing on his nose, each one as unique as the little white spots adorning his coat, his name was given to him: Snowflake.

Limited Edition of 5,000.

White Christmas

Artist: Ann Yarbrough

Every year someone somewhere dreams of a white Christmas where treetops glisten and children listen, to hear sleigh bells in the snow.... May your days be merry and bright, and all your Christmases be white.
