Arabian Nights

Artist : Karlynn Keyes and Bryn Wilkins Lawson

Once upon a time in ancient Persia, there was a stunningly beautiful girl who told entrancing stories to her King for a thousand and one adventurous nights! The King was mesmerized by her storytelling and her knowledge of history, philosophy, poetry, and the arts. This young woman was well-read and well-bred and she entertained and educated the King about morality and kindness, which forever changed the way he ruled. Finally, the King made her his Queen, and to thank her for the many nights of storytelling, he gave his beloved wife a white Arabian Horse, dressed in a classical Arabian Horse Costume featuring intricate patterns, stunning colors and an abundance of tassels. They named their horse "Arabian Nights."

PAINTED PONIES

Bonanza

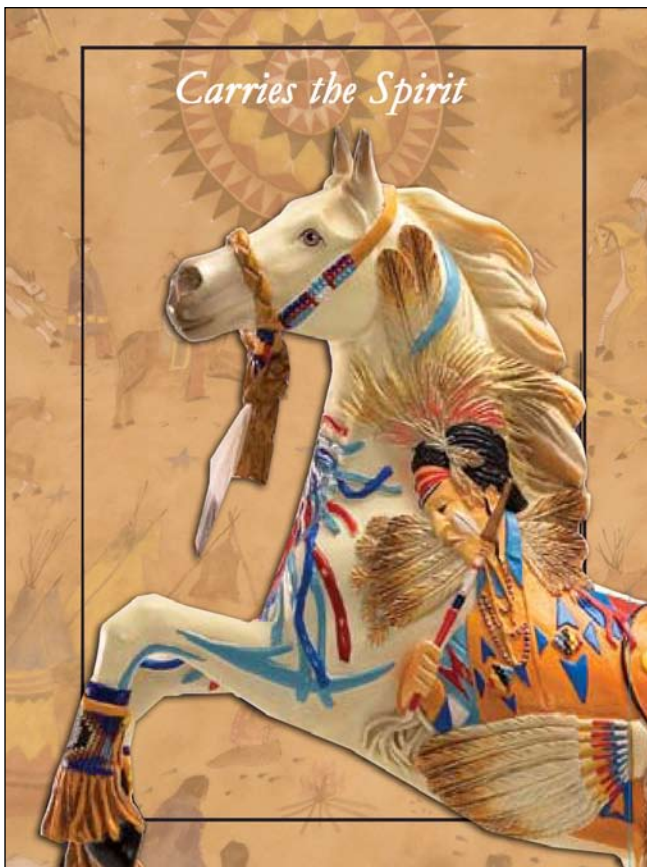

Artist : Janee Hughes and Rod Barker

Remember those Saturday afternoon matinees starring Roy Rogers, Gene Autry and other guitar-strumming cowboys? Remember how all of them rode a spirited horse that, on command, would rear up as if charging the sky? "Bonanza" is a tribute to the American West. Featuring such iconic images as a covered wagon, a bleached cow skull, gem-studded horseshoes and an acoustic guitar, it has lassoed the very Best of the West!

Carries the Spirit

Artist : Lynn Bean

"Carries the Spirit" is standing tall and proud on its hind legs, as if stepping to the beat of a drum at a pow wow. This rearing, white stallion, has caught the spirit of the two Native Dancers in dazzling regalia, who spin and leap dramatically, fringe and feather blowing like grass in the wind. Pow wows are tribal gatherings where Native People sing, dance, socialize and honor traditional values, and reflect important aspects of Native American society.

Dragonfly Magic

Artist : Lynn Bean

With beautiful, iridescent wings that sparkle like jewels, it's no wonder that dragonflies have taken on magical dimensions for many cultures. For some they represent renewal after a time of great hardship. Others admire them because their lives are short and they know they must live life to its fullest in the time they have. "Dragonfly Magic" encourages us to let our own colors come forth as we journey through life and seek a universal source of inspiration.

Native Dancer

Artist : The Trail of Painted Ponies Tribute to Traditions

This creative interpretation of a vintage Indian Carousel Pony pays proud tribute to the artistic traditions behind the magnificent, hand-carved, carousel horses that were popular in America at the turn of the 20th century. "Native Dancer," commemorates this extraordinary art form and the artisans and craftsmen that elevated these elaborate Painted Ponies, as they were known, to museum quality art. At one time, over 7,000 carousels, or merry-go-rounds, spun their magical spell in amusement parks around the world. Regrettably, only 300 carousels remain in existence today. We would like to recognize the contribution of carousel restoration artist Pam Hessey, for her efforts to preserve carousel horses for future generations.

The Front Runner

THE TRAIL OF PAINTED PONIES

The Front Runner

Artist : Kim Ratigan

In horse racing, the Front Runner is a horse who takes the lead at the start of the race and maintains that lead until crossing the finish line. "The Front Runner," which placed first in a national "Art of Horse Racing" competition, captures the thrilling run down the home stretch, at precisely that moment when the winning jockey glances back to check on his closest competitor. Horse racing is an ancient sport that began in 4500 BC among the nomadic tribesmen of Central Asia, who first domesticated the horse. Often referred to as "The Sport of Kings," it is the second only to baseball as America's most popular spectator sport.

War Cry

War Cry

Artist : Vickie Knepper-Adrian

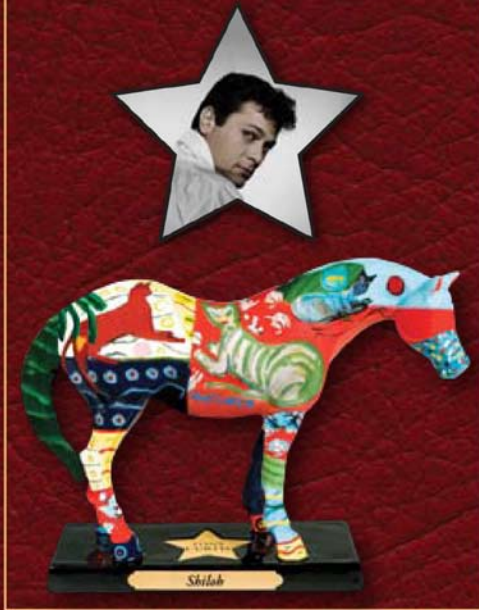

On a barren, windswept hill in eastern Montana there stands a tall obelisk inscribed with the names of the 268 men of the 7th Cavalry who lost their lives on June 26, 1876, in the Battle of Little Bighorn. Custer's Last Stand is remembered by most Americans as a shocking defeat for the United States 7th Cavalry. However, for Native Americans, it is remembered as the last chapter in the Native American struggle to preserve and defend their homeland and traditional way of life. There has been no equivalent memorial for Native Americans heroic sacrifice, until now. This gives "War Cry" its power and poignancy.
